Chaplain's Corner

This is a beautiful time of the year. It is filled with many sentiments as we celebrate Thanksgiving and Christmas. Each celebration involves family, memories, traditions and touches our deepest human emotions. Tying these celebrations together and giving them meaning is our relationship with God. How empty these celebrations become if religious traditions and truths are not a part of the Seasons. Reflection on the love of our Creator gives substance to our celebrations. Thankful for what? To Whom? Is it for what we have accomplished on our own? "Christmas"? Is it the Winter Season? Presents? Is it the celebration of the love of God who sent His Son born of a virgin and our reflection of that love in our dealings with one another this season? Family plays a big part in these celebrations. It is in the family that religious practices are taught and handed on the enhance the truths we celebrate. Parents share in God's creative capacity to give life. Parents respect their children as gifts from God and educate their children and form them in the faith. They lead them in prayer, religious instruction and practice of the faith. This is a serious obligation. Without the cooperation of parents as first teachers of their children in the ways of faith, basic truths are lost. Celebrations lose their meaning and become empty. We all have loving memories of our family celebrations, as children and then as adults. They had the religious purpose at the core which gave them life. Pass these practices with the understanding of the truths within to others. This is tradition which is the way early Christianity was handed down for generations. Become informed of your religious roots and truth, consider them important in your life and then give them as a gift to others..This is the best gift to children. We certainly hope you will have a faith filled celebration of the Seasons ahead.
